

Chester H. Miller, 62, senior partner in the well-known Oakland architectural firm of Miller-Warnecke, will be buried at 1 p.m. Monday. He died New Year's day.

TRD JAN 3 - 1953
An Oakland native and a life long Oakland resident, Mr. Miller lived at 6517 Liggett Drive. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy K. Miller.

A member of the Piedmont Community Church, Mr. Miller was a member of many Oakland service clubs as well as being past president of the State Association of California Architects, and a past director of the San Francisco Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

Mr. Miller, in addition to being a member of many professional boards and organizations, was a member of the board of architects who planned the Oakland Civic Center.

Among the buildings built and designed by the firm, Oakland's oldest, are:

Castlemont High School, San Leandro High School, Women's City Club, Hill Castle Apartments, the Oakland Public Library and the University of California Forestry and Physics Building.

Mr. Miller will be buried from the Telegraph Avenue Chapel of the Grant D. Miller Funeral Company, a structure designed and built by his firm.
